Your letter of the 5th inst. was received last night, and I promptly respond to your eail as clearly and fully as a heavy press of business cuaggements will permit. I shall endeavor to be no breadth of the common public domain? Was this hereism on their part in adheron, to princiless pointed and explicit then candid. You do not, in my judgment, over estimate the importance of the question now pressing upon the public mind, growing out of the disruption of the lie mind, growing out of the disraption of the Chirleston Convention. While I was not greatly surpresed at that result, considering the elements of its composition, and the general distemper of the times, still I deeply regret it, and with you look with intense interest to the consequences. Whit is done cannot be undone or amended; that must remain irrevocable. It was lid, therefore, be as useless as ungracious to indulge in any reflections as to whose fault the rupture was owing to. Perhaps, and most probably, undue excitement and heat of passion, in pursuit of particular ends connected with the elevation or overthrow of particular rivals for preference, more than any strong desire, guided by cool judgment, so necessary on such occasions to alwance the public good, was the real cause of the rupture. Be that as it may, however, what is not reference to the public good, was the real cause of the rupture. Be that as it may, however, what is not received as a consequence of the constitution and the great principles of self government placeit," the company the whole subject where the constitution and the great principles of self government placeit," the company the description of the consequence of the rupture. In this you clearly perceive what I think of the proper course now to be taken on the same subject. While in the beginning of this controversy I was not favorable to the policy adontol, yet I finally yielded my assent. It was yielded to the South—to the prevailing sentiment of my own section. But it never wo I dhave been yielded I if I had seen that any of our important rights, or serious muchting danger to us could result from the serious muchting danger to us could result from the serious muchting danger to us could result from the serious muchting danger to us could result from the serious muchting danger to us could result from the serious muchting danger to us could result from the serious muchting danger to us could result from the serious muchting danger to us could result from the serious muchting danger to us could result from the serious muchting danger to us could result from the serious much along the serious and maintain them in good laith now and always, if need be, until they, we, and the reput lin, peri h togyther in a common runt. Nor would I now be willing to roide hy it, if I saw in its practical workings any serious injury to the South likely to arise from it. All parties in the South, after the settlement was made, gave in the Missauti, Alabama, Mississippi, and Arkans of the settlement was made, gave in the settlement.

A State Convention should be called at an early day—and that Convention should consider the whole subject calmy and dispassionately, with "the sober second thought," and determine whether to send a representation to Richmond or to Bultumore. This I shall do. In the list place, then, I assume, as an unquestioned and unquestionable fact, that no intervention, as stated, has been for many years received, recognized, and acted upon as the settled doctrine of the South. By non-intervention I mean the principle that Congress shall pass no law upon the subject of slavery in the Territories, either for or against it, in any way—that they shall not interlere or net upon it at all—or, in the express words of Mr. Calhom, the great Southern leader, that Congcess shall "leave the whole subject where the Constintion and the great principle of self government places it."—I this has been connecutly a Southern doctrine. It is presented not to the Democratic party alone; it is true that a convention of that party may lirst act on it, but it is presented to the country, to the whole people of the South, of all parties. And men of all parties should duly and timely consider it, for they may all have to take sides on it sooner or later.

It was, in my view, not the full measure of our rights; that required, in my judgment, the enactment by Congress of all needful laws for the protection of slive property in the Territories so long as the Territorial condition lasted."

But an overwhelming responsive of the South was against that position. It was said that we who maintained it yielded the whole question by yielding the jurisdiction, and that, if we conceded the power to protect, we necessarily conceded with it the power to protect, we necessarily conceded with the power to protect the protection by the protection of the protection by o'Thus the settlement was made—thus the record stands, and by it I am still willing to stand, stateshan and patriots. There is, in my judgment, nothing to fear from the "irrepressible conflict," of which we hear so much. Slavery rests upon great truths, which can never be successfully assailed by reason or argument. It has grown stronger in the minds of men the more it has been discussed, and it will still grow stronger as the discussion proceeds and time rolls on. Truth is omnipotrat and must prevail. WASHINGTON, D. C., May 10, 1564. Your better of the 5th inst. was day received, and would have been better replied to, but for too fact that I have so ned an indress containing my opinions somewhat at la ge upon the questions which you have submitted to me, and which address I expected would have been pob ished before th's time; that having been delayed in the mean-time, I thought it lest to give you a brief reply.

I have looked with interest, but without apprehension, upon the proceedings, unmist kable evidence of the ster by advance of sound constitution. seventeen States to have sanctione land presented as much truth on the starcey issue as is a n-

In this connection, I may be permitted to say, that I lave real with deep interest the debates of the Charleston Convention, and noticularly stands the naked question, as I undergent fact by simply shutting our own eves. The briends of this political opinion have ovlended it with ability and zeal, have tendered us the issue my stock.

Of the best material and in the most fushionable stile, warranted to lit.

If refertlemen are requested to call and examine in stock. and dymand its acceptance; it can no longer be avoided either with safety or honor. I accept it, and will give it the same determined opposition wherever presented.

Alter the seceding delegates left the Convention, it is understood a proposition was made by the delegates from New York to the delegates sides on it sooner or later

It rises in importance high above any party organization of the present day, and it may, and ought to, if need be, sweep them all from the board. My judgment is against the demand. If it were a new question, presented in its present light, for the lirst time, my views upon it might be different from what they nre. It is known to you and the country that the policy of non-intervention, as established at the instance of the South, was no lavorite one of mine.
